to enjoy thoroughly the most comical satire at their expense that has been produced in recent years. It's a play called "The Image," by Lady Gregory, which was given this week at the Abbey Theatre, in Dublin.

Three Irish whistles in a fight get stranded, and instead of capturing the treasure the people talk about it until the next tide runs away with one of the whistles. The other goes, too, but leaves a sum of money, and the district council decides to put up a statue with it. But to whom?

Great Irishmen are always so much greater than one another that no two of the people can agree. Some are for Daniel O'Connell; some are for Charles Stewart Parnell, and some for other great Irishmen, but everybody is afraid to mention his choice.

Then along comes the village fool and pleads for Hugh O'Leary. Who was he? Nobody knows, not even the fool, but the vote is by ballot, and Hugh O'Leary, the village idiot, receives every vote in the village, and he is elected. Then it turns out that O'Leary is a character in a book which nobody had read, not even the fool.

BATHS OF DIOCLETIAN

Antient Ruins to Remain Untouched.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]
ROME, November 20.—King Victor Emmanuel has visited the Baths of Diocletian, which it is proposed to isolate and restore for the occasion of the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the proclamation of united Italy. His Majesty approved the project to repatriate the plan of Michael Angelo, who adapted the antient ruins to the present church, instead of building anew, as was originally intended. Thus the ruins stand untouched. The sum of $180,000 has been provided to meet the expense of the necessary work. The King recommended that the ruins be left as they are, and that the church be demolished. A fresco, representing the Madonna and Child, flanked by saints, has been discovered in the Church of St. Bartolomeo, on an island in the Tiber, dating from the beginning of the thirteenth century. It is admirably preserved. It is being carefully uncovered from the superimposed whitewash.

An anti-clerical butcher at Potenza outraged a shrine of the Madonna and forced his dog to lick the image. The butcher, full of sense, and assumed the rigidity of death. He was conveyed to a hospital, where he recovered, but he was mad. He barks like a dog. The inhabitants of Potenza are convinced that a miracle was performed, and are flocking in pilgrimages to the shrine, where solemn functions in reparation of the outrage are being held.

WITHDRAWS SUIT

Burlingham Satisfied With Apology From Mme. Steinhilf.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]
PARIS, November 20.—Frederick Harrison Burlingham, the American journalist, who was unjustly accused at one time by Madame Steinhilf of being one of the murderers of her husband and mother, has withdrawn his civil suit for $4,000 against Madame Steinhilf for "moral and material damages."

After Burlingham had instituted his suit he received a letter from Mme. Steinhilf, in which she expressed surprise at his action in bringing a suit against her. She repeated her previous statement that her recognition of him as one of the murderers, while made in good faith, was due to an involuntary mistake, which she very much regretted. In her letter Madame Steinhilf again declared her sorrow for the error she had caused "in gallant man like you."

Mr. Burlingham in his reply, said he would withdraw his action at once, as it had accomplished its purpose in inducing Mme. Steinhilf to make the apology referred to above. The question of money damages, he said, had been only a secondary matter with him.

ABRUZZI APPOINTED

Speculation as to What Effect It Will Have on Romance.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]
ROME, November 20.—Official orders to-day announced the appointment of the Duke of the Abruzzi, who was at one time engaged to Miss Katherine Elkins, as a rear admiral. This appointment has been forecast for some time, and there has been considerable speculation as to its connection with the romance of the duke and the young American girl.

CRITICISMS EFFECTIVE

Commission Appointed to Revise Criminal Procedure.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]
PARIS, November 20.—The cabinet at a meeting to-day appointed a commission to prepare a bill or a number of bills for the modification of the French criminal procedure at Magistrates' and Assize Courts in accordance with the recent suggestions of M. Barthou, the Minister of Justice. This action was really due to the world-wide criticisms of French criminal trials during the Steinhilf case. M. Barthou, the Minister of Justice, is the president of the commission, and MM. Ribot and Cruppi the vice-presidents.

TAFT SPENDS BUSY DAY AT HAMPTON

The President in a brief address said he believed that the institutions of Hampton and Tuskegee and the spirit of co-operation which they engendered among both white and colored people for the general uplift of humanity are doing more for the solution of the so-called race problem than any other factors that could be brought to bear.

Speech by Montague.

Former Governor A. J. Montague, of Virginia, had spoken of the interest the white people of the State had always taken in the work of Hampton, and declared that no race could prosper by the oppression of another race, and that the happiness and prosperity of the white people depended largely upon what they should do to improve the condition of the blacks.

ton, also were among the speakers. Mr. Carnegie paid a high tribute to President Taft, and declared that he had done more than any other man to bring the North and the South into closer union. He predicted that Mr. Taft would go down in history as "the great pacifier." Mr. Carnegie declared that there is no such thing in the world as forgiveness.

"There cannot be," he added. "It does not accord with the laws of nature, which mete out justice only. We are all weaving webs in this life, and if we commit an error, if a fault passes into ours, it goes down. It does not mean to say that any of us is perfect. We all have our faults. But a man's character is affected by every fault he commits and by every thought he harbors. If we err, if we commit a sin, we never can be as perfect as if we had never erred or never sinned. "Bear that in mind as you go out of here to-day, and let it stand as my word to you, and you will have less difficulty in living up to a higher standard of life. Remember that you have to give an account of all you do, because everything you do affects your character. In that sense I say there is no such thing in the world as forgiveness."

Carnegie's Prediction.

Mr. Carnegie predicted that the lines between the white and colored races soon would be obliterated, as the lines between the North and South so rapidly are disappearing.

"I do not mean," he explained, "that the black man will cease to be black, but I do mean that the races will live in contentedness, wishing prosperity each to the other, and with a common purpose in mind will go forward hand in hand."

Clarence Kealey, president of the Title Guaranty Company of New York, was to-day elected a member of the board of trustees of the institute.

President Taft said it was his hope, and he believed it was the hope of the nation, that Hampton should serve as a model for industrial and educational work, not alone for the negro and the Indian, but the white people as well.

Before he spoke, President Taft listened for an hour and a half to a series of talks by five Hampton graduates on characteristic phases of the school's work in agriculture, industrial and social welfare activities.

Robert Morton, commandant of the Hampton cadets, made a rather striking address.

"Ever since the black map set foot on the shores of this country," said Morton, "he has been a problem. I sympathize with the white people who have this problem on their hands, but, my friends, I am mighty glad we are here, and I'm going to do all in my power to keep all our people here. We have imbibed many of the traits and ambitions of the white people, and I believe that the American negro is 500 years ahead of any body of 10,000,000 black men to be found anywhere in the world. I have never found my color a disadvantage. It has been an inconvenience at times, but never a disadvantage."

A feature of the exercises was the chorus singing of the entire student body. They sang plantation melodies and camp meeting songs that fairly swayed the audience with their rhythm. Robert C. Ogden, president of the board of trustees, was called to New York this afternoon by the critical illness of his wife.

MONSTER MASS-MEETING

Two small houses in Mayo town, a small negro settlement about half a mile outside of Manchester, on the Petersburg Turnpike, was destroyed by fire, which started at 2:30 o'clock this morning. The district is under the supervision of the fire department to be effective, and the company was not sent out.

Georgia Governor Burned in Effigy.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]
LA GRANGE, Ga., November 20.—Governor Joseph M. Brown was burned in effigy because he saved Dr. J. M. Elliott from the gallows by commuting death sentence to life imprisonment. The burning took place in the public square. The effigy, labeled "Joe Brown," was first hanged, riddled with bullets, and then cut down and burned. Elliott killed George Rivers, a prominent citizen, about eighteen months ago.

According to papers found on the body Howell served in the Twenty-seventh Volunteer Infantry and the First Artillery. His body was out to pieces.

LEADERS REFUSE TO FOLLOW BRYAN

New Prohibition Views Too Much for Nebraska Democrats.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]

LINCOLN, NEB., November 20.—William Jennings Bryan will conduct a prohibition campaign in the United States, and the first gun in the battle was fired in the Commonwealth this week. Mr. Bryan will positively announce his conversion to the county option theory of prohibition, and will open a campaign in Nebraska, which he expects to spread all over the country. All the information is contained in a series of prohibition articles which Mr. Bryan has already written, and which will be printed, one each week in the Commonwealth. Each article will be somewhat more radical than the preceding one, and before the last one appears, his converts will be even should it be necessary to choose between Democracy and county option, Mr. Bryan will stay by prohibition.

In the past two weeks Mr. Bryan has held conferences with many of the Democratic leaders of Nebraska, has read his articles, and laid his plans before them. Almost to a man these leaders have refused to follow his leadership further, and such Democratic converts as have been made, have practically deserted Bryan. To the surprise of his friends, Mr. Bryan said he expected his new position to entirely eliminate him from further chances of office, and that he would have no further plans before them. He said he expected to really make prohibition the issue upon which he will make still another effort at securing the presidency.

Charcoal, the Great Absorbent

Absorbs and Removes Stomach and Intestinal Gases and Makes the Blood Pure.

The able researches of Dr. Stenhouse, published about the middle of the last century, excited considerable interest in charcoal, and its wonderful absorbing powers, and its wonderful ability to deodorize, as well as the absorbing qualities of charcoal, and its ability to destroy all kinds of question or doubt, that its properties of destroying the offensive odors of putrid vegetable and animal matter, and its ability to absorb all kinds of poisons, as had been generally supposed theretofore, but also on its quality of absorbing and oxidizing all kinds of noxious exhalations from putrefying matters.

Many other noted physicians have since that time investigated the power of charcoal as a stomach cleanser, gas absorbent and oxidizing agent, and one of them, Dr. Hunter, has also published in accordance with his experiments, a book on the relative amount of the various gases taken up by the different kinds of charcoal.

Both Stenhouse and Hunter experimented with charcoal made from poplar, boxwood, cocoon shells, willow wood, and various other woods, and they found that charcoal made from willow wood possessed by far the most power of absorbing, deodorizing, oxidizing and destroying foul gases. It may be added here that animal charcoal, which is employed so extensively for deodorizing agents in very inferior to wood charcoal as an absorbent and deodorant.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are composed of charcoal made from the finest willow wood, the very best of all woods that can be used for this purpose. The addition of pure honey to these lozenges renders them so palatable that no one can possibly object to their taste.

When they are taken into the stomach they do not lie inert and inactive, but get busy at once in the good work of absorbing and oxidizing all kinds of gases, destroying disease germs, preventing the further formation of gases, stopping fermentation, flatulence and indigestion. GREAT DISCOVERY AROUSES INTEREST

Physician Demonstrates Wonderful Possibilities of His New Anesthetic.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]

LONDON, November 20.—Professor Jonnesco, dean of the University of Bucharest, who performed an operation at the Seaman's Hospital Thursday, using the new anesthetic, stovaline, has aroused the deepest interest in British medical circles by the successful demonstration of the possibilities of his discovery.

Although a man of the highest standing at home, he came to England without having put himself in connection with any medical association or even an individual medical man of mark. He at first found great difficulty in securing a hearing and an opportunity for a demonstration of his wonderful discovery. Fortunately, however, meeting Dr. Bland-Sutton, one of the greatest surgeons in England, his difficulties were removed, and the week after his arrival Professor Jonnesco performed the operation, details of which have already been cabled.

The result of this was that he was invited to lecture before the Royal Society of Medicine the following afternoon.

Professor Jonnesco commenced his experiments in 1908, and soon proved on animals that a mixture of neutral sulphate of strychnine with stovaline is absolutely a perfect anesthetic without any of the drawbacks of a general anesthetic. The proportions of the mixture vary with the seat of the puncture and the age and general condition of the patient. Professor Jonnesco, in his series of operations on all kinds of all parts of the body, from head to foot, and on patients varying in age from twenty-one months to seventy-five years, did not find a single instance of the heart or the respiration being affected. He has maintained the condition of anaesthesia during various periods up to two hours, which was the longest.

Many advantages for this form of anaesthesia are apparent immediately. One, notably, is the avoidance of difficulty to the operator from the danger to the patient in operations in the throat when the patient is unconscious, caused by blood interfering with breathing. Professor Jonnesco's methods enable him to do without tracheotomy in these cases.

A good example of the completeness of the anaesthesia and its total lack of bad effect on the patient was given by the professor in his lecture before the Royal Medical College, when he showed on a screen photographs of a surgeon operating on himself.

A surgeon is a specialist in hernia, living in Jersey, Roumania. He himself developed hernia. He had a strychnine-stovaline injection and operated on himself before a class of students, to whom he lectured while performing the operation. Eight days later he removed the stitches, and was perfectly cured. The case was a very unusual one, and slightest after ill effects of stovaline. The man operated on Thursday for a couple of hours in his hernia. He was not affected. One of the fundamental principles of the method is the use of a mixture of strychnine and stovaline in the proportion of two parts of strychnine to one part of stovaline. The amount of the injection is a cubic centimetre.

Professor Jonnesco will sail for America to-day, and will give a series of lectures on his discovery. He has not arranged to lecture, but he hopes to approach that end of the world, and to approach that end of the world, although to those who know the latter part of the world, by conquering it in a very comprehensive manner.

Ex-Congressman

Meekison Gives Praise To Pe-ru-na For His Relief From Catarrh.

EX-CONGRESSMAN MEEKISON COMMENDS PE-RU-NA.

"I have used several bottles of Peru-na, and I feel greatly benefited thereby from my catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if I use it a short time longer I will be fully able to eradicate the disease of thirty years' standing."—David Meekison.

OTHER REMARKABLE CASES.

Constant confinement in my store began to tell on my health, and I felt that I was gradually breaking down. I tried several remedies, but obtained no permanent relief until I took Peru-na. I felt better immediately, and five bottles restored me to complete health."

A SINCERE RECOMMENDATION.

Mr. D. C. Prosser, Bravo, Allegan county, Mich., writes: "Two years ago I was badly afflicted with catarrh of the stomach. I had a run of typhoid fever; was very depleted. It helped me soon, and after taking three or four bottles I was entirely cured of stomach trouble, and can now eat anything."

NOISY APPROVAL FROM CONVENTION

Unionists Cheer When Gompers and Mitchell Are Indorsed and Re-elected.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]

TORONTO, ONT., November 20.—After unanimously re-electing President Samuel Gompers, Vice-President John Mitchell, Secretary Frank Morrison and other executive officers, and selecting St. Louis as the place for holding the next meeting, the twenty-ninth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, which has been in session here for two weeks, adjourned finally to-day.

Uncertainty as to whether an appeal to the Supreme Court will be allowed in the Bucks Stove and Range Company contempt proceedings, and the possibility that Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison may have to go to jail in the near future, hung like a cloud over the closing days of the convention, and the re-election of the trio was the signal for noisy demonstrations of approval.

President Gompers, in thanking the convention for its action, declared that it meant that the principles for which he and his colleagues had dared to stand, have the unanimous approval of the labor men and women of the entire continent, and pointed out that the injunction in the Bucks Stove and Range Company applies to every one of the 2,000,000 workers in the federation.

The special committee which is to endeavor to bring about the amalgamation of the warring factions of electrical workers will call a conference of the two factions within a year. Most of the delegates left the city to-day, but the members of the executive council will remain over for a meeting on Monday.

Don't Experiment With Old-Fashioned Hair Dyes

— I Want to Prove the Truth at My Expense —

If your hair is partly gray or faded, just tell me in a letter. Then I will send to you, without charge, a clear, pure, liquid—enough for you to completely restore the original color to a lock of your hair. And so that you may apply it easily, I'll send you a special fine toothed comb, also free.

Each application will bring back a little of the color to the gray hair in a mild, healthful manner until in a few days every gray hair will be restored to its original color—a color which will be especially pleasing to the eye because of its natural appearance.

Then to test the color, take the lock of hair and wash it in any way you wish—even curl it with a hot iron. Give it the most severe test you can, and you will find that the color is in the hair through and through, and really is lasting and natural.

But don't confuse this preparation for an instant with the troublesome "Two Bottle Dye," or the poisonous sugar-lead preparations having the thick, heavy sediment. They are greasy, sticky, and disgusting to use, and rub off on everything they touch.

If you will make this test on a lock of hair at my expense, you will know that my preparation is as good as mine.

This week—Free trial bottle and free comb at
